Hershey, Milton Snavely

Milton Snavely Hershey (1857-1945) was an American manufacturer who founded one of the world's largest candy companies, the Hershey Chocolate Company. He was a pioneer in the mass production of milk chocolate, turning it from an expensive luxury into an affordable, everyday treat.

Hershey was born on Sept. 13, 1857, in Derry Church, Pennsylvania. He became a confectioner's apprentice in nearby Lancaster at age 15. After several failures, he founded his first successful business, the Lancaster Caramel Company, in 1886. He created the Hershey Chocolate Company in 1894 to make chocolate coatings for his caramels. He soon perfected a formula for milk chocolate and, in 1900, the company began selling the "Hershey bar." Also in 1900, he sold his caramel company for $1 million.

Hershey began to build a factory in Derry Church in 1903, and his company began operating there in 1905. The community was renamed Hershey in 1906. Hershey died on Oct. 13, 1945.

Ford, Henry, II

Henry Ford II (1917-1987) was an American businessman. He saved the Ford Motor Company from almost going bankrupt during the 1940's. He was a grandson of Henry Ford, who started the company in 1903.

Henry Ford II was born on Sept. 4, 1917, in Detroit. He became vice president of the Ford Motor Company in 1943 and president in 1945. At that time, the company was losing about $9 million a month. Ford reorganized the company. He changed the style of Ford cars to make them more popular. In the 1950's and 1960's, such models as the Thunderbird, Falcon, Mustang, and Maverick helped keep the company strong. In 1960, Ford became chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Ford Motor. He retired as chief executive officer in 1979 and as chairman in 1980.

Ford also worked to help people. He helped start the Urban Coalition (now the National Urban Coalition) to solve problems in cities and the National Alliance of Business to find jobs for people. He died on Sept. 29, 1987.
